Six Escape Early Sunday Bakery Fire

Two families fled to the street in night attire from second floor suites in the Stinson Block, 10325 97 street, about 4.10 a.m. Sunday, barely escaping death by flames from a fire which broke out in Stinson's Bakery, below the suites.

THOSE WHO MADE their way to safety were Mr. and Mrs. John Sloan and their three-year-old son, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pierce and their baby.

The fire, which completely gutted the bakery, caused about $10,000 damage. The upstairs suites were damaged by smoke.

Mr. Sloan said he was awakened by the strong acrid smell of smoke. He aroused his wife, who carried their son to safety. Mr. Sloan then made his way through the dense smoke to the Pierce suite and aroused the occupants.

Residents in the Stinson Block next door became alarmed by the fire and fled to the street also, many of them carrying belongings with them.

ABOUT EIGHT HOURS later fire completely destroyed the former Salvation Army hut at the Prince of Wales Army and caused damage to a hut which formerly housed a canteen.

Children are believed to have been responsible for the blaze which destroyed the vacated arm.

Five city firemen and other workers rescued scores of other plant employees from the gas, escaping from a broken window for line.

Seven workers in addition to Handley were rushed to city hospitals after being affected by the gases. They were: Alex Chernoff, Doris Oleksuk, William Rothwell, Stanley Skrypnichuk, Miss Ewa-chyna, William Cressel and Leslie Ross.

None were believed to be in danger.

Transit Strikers Reject Settlement

VANCOUVER, Nov. 10.—(CP)—Footwear commuters in British Columbia's major cities of Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster looked forlornly today as labor leader Gordon Winter as their last hope for settlement of a strike of 2,000 transportation company workers now entering its fourth week.

The move to bring the British Columbia Electric Company and the members of the Street Railwaymen's Union (AFM) was emphasized Saturday with the announcement that the union was by a 2,016-510 vote the latest settlement offer.

It was for a 10 cents hourly wage boost and a 40-hour week by next September. The union wants

King to Receive Catholic Wishes

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—A palace spokesman said today that the King has consented to receive Thursday from Bernard Cardinal Griffin the official congratulations of the Roman Catholic Church in England and Wales on the impending marriage of Princess Elizabeth.

The monarch's brother, the Duke of York, has given his official congratulations to the King. The Archbishop of Canterbury, the Archbishop of York, ranking Anglican prelates, made similar congratulatory addresses.

Catholic leaders recently started a campaign for repeal of the ecclesiastical act of 1871. The Catholic press described the law as "an affront to the King's Catholic subjects." Under the law, the Catholic archbishop is allowed to send a "loyal address" or congratulatory message to the King, but is not allowed to sign his name.

On Holy Land Partition U.S. and Russia Reach Agreement

By Jacques Franconer
LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Nov. 10.—(BUP)—The United States and Russia agreed today on a compromise for terminating Great Britain's mandate over Palestine next May 1 and partitioning the territory into Arab and Jewish states by July 1.

THE COMPROMISE was hammered out in a private four-nation meeting after Russia abandoned its insistence on ending the British mandate Jan. 1 and altered its demands for a commission of the 11 UN Security Council countries to supervise the Holy Land for a year.

The resultant agreement called for a commission of three or five small powers to represent the Arab and Jewish Palestine states. The end of British control and the assumption of independence by Arab and Jewish Palestine states. In that period, it was understood, Arab and Jews would keep law and order in their own territories with their own militia, to be organized along with other organs of government between now and the independence date.

THE UNITED STATES, making two major concessions to the Russians, agreed to place the UN commission under supervision of the UN Security Council where the big five powers hold the veto. It also dropped its proposal to make Great Britain enforce partition rather than handing the responsibility to the UN.

The proposed commission would be established by the general assembly but would be made "subordinate" to the security council.

Residents in the Stinson Block next door became alarmed by the fire and fled to the street also, many of them carrying belongings with them.

Admits Having Affair

ROCKFORD, Ill., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Glenn Marsh, 27-year-old farmer, sought since the kidnapping of his paramour and the fatal shooting of her husband and her father Friday night, surrendered yesterday and told police his fear that his illicit love affair would be ended had led to the tragedy.

"I STILL LOVE KIL," Glenn Marsh told reporters, referring to Mrs. Katherine Anderson, 32, his neighbor and mother of three small children. Marsh orally admitted kidnapping Mrs. Anderson after the slaying.

"I didn't mean to kill those men," Vernon Anderson, 28, husband of "Kil," and Grand Marshal, 52, of Northport, Mich., her father, who were shot to death in the home of Vernon's parents.

Marsh was arrested shortly after 1:30 a.m. in the home of his father, James R. Marsh, where he appeared while a four-state search for him was in progress.

He was quoted by police as saying "I'm ready to face the music," when arrested.

Mrs. A. Weston, state's attorney, said that Marsh, appearing confused and hanging his head, told of going to Anderson's home Friday night with a pistol loaded with a .38 Smith & Wesson.

The slaying broke out at 1:30 a.m. in the home of his father, James R. Marsh, where he appeared while a four-state search for him was in progress.

Revolution Is Bloodless

By S. S. Chavala
BANGKOK, Nov. 10.—(BUP)—The revolutionary clique that overthrew the government yesterday under the leadership of Field Marshal Luang Pibul Songgram, puppet premier under the Japanese, began organizing a new cabinet and writing a new constitution for Siam today.

IT WAS EXPECTED THAT Songgram would remain in control of the new government. The coup d'état against Premier Luang Pibul Songgram, puppet premier under the Japanese, began organizing a new cabinet and writing a new constitution for Siam today.

The new constitution, it was understood, will further consolidate his power. It will increase the power of the king, 18-year-old Phumolul Adet, who is studying in Switzerland. He has been characterizing his function through two-year regency council, which was now under the control of the rebels.

The new constitution also will replace the present two-house parliament—which will be dissolved with a one-house legislature. In

$5,000 Worth Furs Destroyed in Fire

For coats, suits and other clothing valued at about $5,000 were destroyed by smoke and water as the two-story frame construction of the fur shop in the Twin City Tailoring and Furriers, 3004 10th avenue, about 8 a.m. Monday.

The fire spread from the rear of the building and along the ceiling of the two-story frame construction. Damage to the building itself was not considered heavy.

The fire started before any of the employees had arrived for work and the cause is not known. Fire Halls Nos. 2 and 5 responded.

Report Soviet Rebuilds German War Machine

By ALEX K. SINGLETON
LONDON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The international committee for the study of European questions reported Saturday night that Russia is using Soviet military schools to train captured German army officers for the "formation of the ranks of a future German Wehrmacht for Germany."

"General lessons of divisions," it added, have been formed by the Russians from German prisoners of war.

National Unity Party Reborn Fuehrer Revives Canada Fascism

By Jacques Franconer
MONTREAL, Nov. 10.—(CP)—Fascism returned to Canada yesterday when its pre-war Fuehrer, Adrien Arcand, voiced the old party cry that Jews and Communists are out to conquer the world, at a secret meeting of some 500 hand-picked followers assembled to hear his first big speech since his release from wartime internment.

ARCAND DID NOT mince his words as he blamed all the ills of the world on the Jews and held them responsible for the last war. "Communism is the weapon of the Jews to conquer the world including Canada," he reportedly said at a "birthday party" in his home.

The press was barred from the meeting and at least three reporters were ejected when they failed to produce special invitation cards to document special scrutinizing all comers.

Reliable sources who gained entry to the party, Saturday with Hamilton and his wife.

At Level Crossing Innisfail Train, Car Crash Kills Man, Girl

INNISFAIL, Alta., Nov. 10.—(CP)—Robert Hoyle, 26, and his fiancée, Eileen Barkmeier, 18, both of Innisfail, were killed almost instantly about 4.20 p.m. yesterday when the car Hoyle was driving was struck by a southbound CPR train at a level crossing three-quarters of a mile north of here. Innisfail is 76 miles north of Calgary.

AN INQUEST opened last night and was adjourned to Nov. 18 after the jury had viewed the bodies. The badly wrecked car was struck in the middle and was run against a telephone pole. Miss Barkmeier lived for a few moments after the accident but Hoyle's death is said to have been instantaneous. Hoyle's wife is to have been married soon.

Hoyle was proprietor of the Hoyle Hall and had been a resident of Innisfail for some time. He was born in Poland.

The incident against Buses is expected to go before the grand jury this afternoon.

U.S. Program Likely to Cost Twenty Billion

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10, (AP)—State Secretary Marshall today asked Congress to provide $507,000,000 for emergency aid in Europe until March 31, 1948. He estimated an additional $7,500,000,000 will be needed in the 15 months starting then.

Eventually, Marshall told a joint meeting of the Senate and House Representatives foreign committees, long-range European recovery costs will range between $10,000,000,000 and $20,000,000,000.

Putting Europe back in good health was the goal of all the major allies except Russia, Bluntly, Marshall said, "The Soviet Union has no interest in this aim."

Marshall's calculation of 15% total cost of long-range aid was considerably higher than the estimate submitted to President Truman by a 19-man citizens committee headed by Secretary of Commerce Harriman. This group had placed the cost of the four-year, self-help program at $12,000,000,000 to $17,000,000,000.

HOWEVER, MARSHALL said it is impossible to compute the amount with accuracy at the present time.

The secretary said that the $507,000,000 in stop-gap funds necessary to meet a "top" and "urgent" need in France, Italy and Austria.

Fighting Tuberculosis

The fact that the public inherently distrust "something for nothing" is borne out rather dishearteningly in the response of Edmonton people to the offer of free chest X-ray examinations in the current fight of the Alberta department of health and the Alberta Tuberculosis Association against the incidence of respiratory diseases.

It is known as a fact that if everybody in this district would submit to X-ray diagnosis, tuberculosis could be made to vanish within the course of a few years. Treatment in the early stages of disease is simple and successful. Tuberculosis only manages to be the killer it is because of the curable stage, it rarely makes itself known to the victim.

Early diagnosis, then, is the one sure way of wiping it out. This is offered freely to the people of Edmonton and of all Alberta.

Unfortunately, in Edmonton the public are not co-operating. The proportion of those keeping their appointments for these X-ray examinations is slightly more than 60 per cent.

In other words, the people of Edmonton, by their failure to submit to 100 per cent examination, are deliberately keeping the incidence of tuberculosis at a high level.

This is certainly not their intent. It must be believed that once the facts are thoroughly understood, there will be no trouble in persuading everybody to take the examinations.

A Fair Offer

Though the terms seem to be generous, not many Canadians will find fault with the financial arrangements offered to Newfoundland and as a condition of its entry into the Dominion. A generous offer would do no credit to Canada and would certainly kill the union proposal. Even a plan which would maintain the Old Colony on its present financial footing would be unacceptable, for union would in that case have little attraction for Newfoundlanders. The main reason for their position is the main reason for their impelled them to suggest a merger—an idea which failed to secure their support on former occasions.

The main items in the offer are that the Dominion would assume the bulk of Newfoundland's debt, pay it out in subsidies amounting to $15,000,000 a year, and give it the same standing as other provinces have in all respects. That it would enter the Dominion "as is," with unquestioned permanent possession of the Labrador territory, goes without saying.

In addition the Colony would secure all the incidental benefits enjoyed by other provinces; freedom to trade with all parts of the Dominion, federal provision of light-houses and other navigation aids, the services which the central government gives toward the development of natural resources, the search for minerals, the encouragement of productive enterprise.

Whether these inducements will seem sufficient to them is for Newfoundlanders to say. There has been no attempt to take advantage of their financial troubles and drive a hard bargain, and no attempt to coax them into the Dominion by bribery.

Something Has to Be Done

Notice has been served that the Soviet Bloc will boycott the Little Assembly if this proposed "watchdog committee" is created. This is regrettable of course, but not at all surprising.

The proposal to set up the committee only arose because Mr. Gromyko had made the Security Council impotent by his persistent use of the veto. No country will be able to veto any action the Little Assembly may propose to take within the powers assigned to it. Naturally Mr. Vishinsky does not like the idea. He sees in it the breaking of the monopoly power vested in the Security Council and turned to Soviet ends by mis-use of the veto.

The Little Assembly will be hampered if the boycott is maintained. It will in that case get no help from the Soviet Bloc in probing situations in which members of the Bloc are concerned. And those members have been concerned in most of the matters with which the Council should have dealt. That was why Mr. Gromyko was so busy vetoing action by that body.

But there is no likelihood that the Little Assembly project will be dropped because the boycott is threatened. Members of the General Assembly evidently see that the United Nations organization must get into action or go into decline. And since the Security Council is not functioning, some other body will have to do the investigating it was supposed to do but isn't allowed to do.

Security Buying

When he goes to a store a buyer usually selects goods because of quality, price or style. But President Franklin D. Roosevelt suggests another consideration which should weigh with Canadians just now when they are making selections of imported articles. He puts the suggestion in this very pointed way: That the measure of political freedom that is to exist in Canada in future may depend upon the extent of our purchases of British-made goods at present.

Britain, as Mr. Garson says, is the bulwark of democracy in Europe. Should it collapse economically the democratic type of government in that continent, wherever it now exists, would probably go down also. And the only way Britain can avoid collapse is to market more of its products in Canada and other overseas countries.

With the heaviest buying season of the year just ahead, this is something which people in Canada—and in other overseas countries of course—may well keep in mind. In this inter-dependent world it is possible to buy security by strengthening the nation which stands as an outpost of political freedom on the fringe of a continent where freedom is being suppressed.

The Fatality Record

Flying is not as dangerous a method of travel as it seems to be.

In Canada, where the "safety first" rule is observed, the idea of danger is hardly associated with commercial aviation. The traveller who is in a hurry just climbs into a plane with no feeling that he is undertaking a hazardous adventure. If the weather ahead is bad, the plane doesn't take off until it clears. The record shows that this common-sense procedure is justified by results. The reaction on the part of the public is that air travel is increasingly popular.

In the United States there were five fatal crashes this year up to October 20th. In these disasters 199 passengers were killed and 17 crew-members, a total of 216. That sounds bad. But three years ago there were also five crashes and "only" 58 persons were killed. The explanation is that planes now are larger, carrying three or four times as many passengers on main line runs as they did even three years ago. And of course the planes which do not crash are far more numerous than they were then, and carry three or four times as many people each.

Worked out in detail, planes in the United States this year have flown around 30,000,000 passenger miles for each passenger killed. The worst year on the record is 1938, when a passenger was killed for each 22,000,000 miles flown.

These figures show that even in the United States the flying crash has been around world-wide attention—traveling by plane involves little risk; and is safer in this year of spectacular tragedies than it used to be.

THE BIKINI TESTS

When some eastern publicists discuss "a new National Policy" to solve Canada's current dollar problem, many Canadians probably will remember the origin, content and effects of the original National Policy. The record of this half-forgotten improvisation may be well revealing since its ghost has appeared again.

In 1854 Lord Elgin, the Governor General of Canada, then composed of what are the modern provinces of Ontario and Quebec) went to Washington and there, amid gay parties and social lobbying, negotiated a reciprocity treaty with the United States. This treaty years ago moved freely across the forty-ninth parallel. But in the American Civil War the treaty which had been the chief champion of the treaty, lost its political value. The United States emerged from the conflict bitterly hostile to British goods and colonies. Hence the reciprocity treaty was cancelled by the United States after a trial of single decade.

FROM THEN ON the economic history of Canada, and much of its political history, centred around an attempt to revive the reciprocity pattern which had worked so well. The Liberal party returned to power in 1873 and the first step was to secure a reciprocity treaty with Sir John A. Macdonald, the first prime minister of the new Confederation. When he attended the Washington conference of 1871 to settle outstanding issues between the United States and Canada, he sought a revival of the reciprocity arrangements of 1854-64. He failed.

When the Liberal government of Alexander Mackenzie took office it made the same attempt. George Brown went to Washington and specially appointed the formation of a Canadian political party in that city but it was rejected by the United States Senate. Thus, the Canadian political party had followed the same policy of making trade in North America. They had been blocked entirely by the United States.

After Lord Elgin and Meighen, the Liberal government returned to power in 1921 and in co-operation with the Progressive party, began a new attempt to secure a reciprocity treaty. It had gone so far when the Conservative party returned to power in 1926 that the Liberal government was flowing freely all over America and Canada enjoyed a full share of the benefits of the treaty. The government made good its party's original faith and negotiated a new reciprocity treaty with the United States. This time it was Canada, not the United States, which rejected the agreement in the Senate. The Conservative party through an act of the British Nationalists of Quebec.

The National Policy

By VOYAGER

Macdonald's finance minister, said in August 1878, that the government might attempt a "readjustment" of existing rates. But when the historic budget of 1879 appeared it was clear that readjustment had become outright protectionism. And it was these new protective tariffs that Macdonald gave the name of the National Policy.

The National Policy was announced in the Ottawa treaty in 1854, and the grave slump which hit North after disorganization of the Civil War. Indeed, some nationalist protectionists today like to imagine that the National Policy did more for the long depression of the seventies and eighties than any other factor. Actually it did nothing of the sort. The depression deepened year after year, Canada was torn by sectional quarrels, New Scotia began to secede from Confederation and the provincial governments were at war with the Federal Government and the last years of Macdonald's administration were marked by the poverty and disunity of the new nation. The great slump had not been caused by the National Policy but assuredly the National Policy had made it worse.

THE REACTION against this experiment in 1926 was so strong that the Liberal party returned to power in 1926 and the first step was to secure a reciprocity treaty with Sir John A. Macdonald, the first prime minister of the new Confederation. When he attended the Washington conference of 1871 to settle outstanding issues between the United States and Canada, he sought a revival of the reciprocity arrangements of 1854-64. He failed.

When the Liberal government of Alexander Mackenzie took office it made the same attempt. George Brown went to Washington and specially appointed the formation of a Canadian political party in that city but it was rejected by the United States Senate. Thus, the Canadian political party had followed the same policy of making trade in North America. They had been blocked entirely by the United States.

After Lord Elgin and Meighen, the Liberal government returned to power in 1921 and in co-operation with the Progressive party, began a new attempt to secure a reciprocity treaty. It had gone so far when the Conservative party returned to power in 1926 that the Liberal government was flowing freely all over America and Canada enjoyed a full share of the benefits of the treaty. The government made good its party's original faith and negotiated a new reciprocity treaty with the United States. India's Victory

By ELMORE PHILPOTT

There is a tonic for disoriented men. If you think the world is in a mess—and heading for the great read history.

Read not only the famous records of former times, but the more down-to-earth, close-to-home stories of the present.

The East Indians of Canada have just won a triple victory. After a long uphill battle, the great victory they have been given full rights of citizenship. They will soon be allowed to vote in federal, provincial and municipal elections.

They are printing the story of their long fight for equality in Canada. They asked me to write a brief foreword to it. I assumed I knew the story. But on looking over the records I realized that I knew just the end.

ANY REAL democrat would be heartily in favour of the great victory they have been given full rights of citizenship. They will soon be allowed to vote in federal, provincial and municipal elections.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 18.—(AP)—An all-star team of soccer players from Eastern Canada outdistanced a similar aggregation of St. Louis players before 3,000 fans at Sportsman Park yesterday.
The score was 3-2 and gave the Canadians the first triumph in what is expected to become an annual international series between the two countries. The two teams played a 3-3 tie in Toronto Oct. 18.

Phil Samis Fires First Pro Marker

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 18.—(CP)—The pace-setting Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League Saturday night defeated St. Louis Flyers 3-1 for their fifth straight victory.
All scoring was in the second period. Phil Samis, Syd Smith, and Al Stone tallied for Pittsburgh. Steve Black for St. Louis. Samis goal was his first in professional hockey.

Valuable Player

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Tony Lupien, Hollywood first baseman, was named Saturday night by the Sporting News, baseball weekly, as the Pacific Coast League's most valuable player for 1947.
Lupien, formerly with Boston Red Sox and Philadelphia Phillies, will be given a tryout with Chicago White Sox next spring.

Irish Roll Over Army After Amazing Touch

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Terry Brennan, a stunned Army by returning the opening kick-off 95 yards for a touchdown Saturday as Notre Dame and the Cadets ended their 34-year-old series with a 27-7 Irish triumph which overshadowed spectacular events on other United States college football fields.
Army's defeat was expected but the 30,171 spectators at Notre Dame saw the Cadets gain more yards through the air than did the Irish, who annexed 368 yards around the ground while the Army marched only 166.
But the score might have been different had Army been able to use some of the players it had once had who are now competing elsewhere. Big Barney Booke, who got fumbled out last June and now is at Mississippi, did his share as the Rebels whipped Tennessee for the first time in 45 years, 43-13.
SHORTY McWILLIAMS, who resigned from the Army a year ago last September, guided and plunged the Mississippi State eleven to a 14-0 verdict over Auburn in the East. Yale was quelled by Brown, 20-14. Princeton wallowed Harvard 35-7, and Cornell won a 12-6 verdict over Syracuse.
Columbia d m p d Dartmouth 12-0 and Georgia Tech halted Navy 16-14.
Penn State blanked Temple, 7-0. Penn won 19-7 over Virginia. Both Penn State and Penn remain undefeated.
In the Midwest, Wisconsin disposed of Iowa 14-6, and Michigan won from Indiana 35-0.

PURDUE ran out of gas against Southern California won over Duke.

In Midwest intercollegiate affairs, Marquette was bowled over by Villanova, 26-7 and Missouri travelled into the south for 28-7 victory over Duke.

Kansas capitalized on a Nebraska gamble that failed for a 13-7 decision.
Southern California won over Stanford 14-0 and continued the California was pressed to down march toward the Rose Bowl and Washington 13-7 and Oregon State the Pacific Coast conference title, was repulsed 27-7 by UCLA.

Help Kidneys If Back Aches And You Get Up Nights

Get up every time, backache, getting up at night, bladder weakness, burning or itching, kidney stones, urinary tract infections, kidney pain and loss of energy, kidney and bladder trouble may be the signs of a serious condition which may undermine health and vitality if allowed to accumulate. And this disease, known as kidney and bladder trouble, may cause you to get up every time you go to the bathroom and cause you to lose your sleep.
Nature provides the kidneys to clean our blood and remove everything that is not needed for our body. To do this your kidneys must filter the blood and remove everything that is not needed for our body. Many things such as salt, sugar, and waste, which are not needed for our body, must be removed. If the kidneys are not working properly, these things will build up in the body and cause a variety of symptoms, including backache, getting up at night, bladder weakness, burning or itching, kidney stones, urinary tract infections, kidney pain and loss of energy.
The kidneys are the most important organs in the body. They are responsible for filtering the blood and removing everything that is not needed for our body. If the kidneys are not working properly, the blood will become toxic and this will cause a variety of symptoms, including backache, getting up at night, bladder weakness, burning or itching, kidney stones, urinary tract infections, kidney pain and loss of energy.
If you are experiencing any of these symptoms, it is important that you see a doctor as soon as possible. The kidneys are the most important organs in the body and if they are not working properly, the blood will become toxic and this will cause a variety of symptoms, including backache, getting up at night, bladder weakness, burning or itching, kidney stones, urinary tract infections, kidney pain and loss of energy.

DOROTHY DIX says:

Ideal Marriage With Husband's Brother

Dear Miss Dix: I am a widow at 26 with two small children. My problem is this. My husband's brother has asked me to marry him, but he is only 20, just a few months older than I am, and I don't know if it is fair for a young man like him to take on a family like mine. He thinks it is all right and he loves me very much. I love my husband's brother as much as I love my husband, and I am sure he has as much as I do. I would like to know if it is fair for a young man like him to take on a family like mine.

MRS. E. M.

ANSWER: It always seems to me that for a man to marry the brother's widow, or for a woman to marry her husband's brother, is the happiest possible solution to the matrimonial problem, when both have broken former ties. Such a marriage combines with it the advantages of a husband and wife, and each of them is familiar with the other's family and habits, and knows how to adjust themselves to them.

Miss above says it appears the wedding of the children who are so much in love is all that is left to be done. Your answer and advice over their happiness and future is all that is left to be done. Your answer and advice over their happiness and future is all that is left to be done.

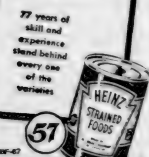

For a long time in England it was illegal for a man to marry his brother's widow, or for a woman to marry her husband's brother, but that law was rescinded, and now the church has lifted its ban against it, and the civil law of 1900 also allows a man to marry his brother's widow, or a woman to marry her husband's brother.

There have been many marriages of this kind in England, and it is a well-known fact that such marriages are very happy ones. Your answer and advice over their happiness and future is all that is left to be done.

Why Grow Old?

You might dance like beautiful Actress Janis Carter and find it wonderful. But you won't feel like doing so unless you have plenty of iron in your blood.

By Josephine Lowman
If you are going to feel like dancing, you must have an adequate supply of iron in your blood. Your iron intake affects the formation of red blood corpuscles.

When you are young, your iron intake is high, and you have plenty of red blood corpuscles. But as you grow older, your iron intake decreases, and you have fewer red blood corpuscles.

ANSWER: I don't believe the "iron" is the answer. The answer is the quality of your diet. Even when you are young, your diet is not perfect.

When you are young, your diet is rich in iron. But as you grow older, your diet becomes less rich in iron. This is why you have fewer red blood corpuscles.

Your diet is the answer. If you eat a diet rich in iron, you will have plenty of red blood corpuscles.

Your Baby and Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

John Ferguson, 1 year old, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. McIntosh of 9634 110 avenue.

When official, governmental pronouncements are made or cooped up in a room and when there is no law enforcement to back these up, then a family may feel it has several ways in which they may make their own law.

One family may say, "I won't let my child eat anything but the best I can buy who's to know if I do or do not?"

The third way say, "I'll obey. They must know what they are talking about."

The point is that such proclamations, because they are voluntary cooperation for the most significant experiences for influencing impressionable children.

All parents feel that it is necessary for children to learn to respect authority. They give this as their motive for harsh and painful punishments. "He has to learn who's boss."

We agree that everyone has to learn who is boss in various situations of his life. But it is parental respect for its own authorities, the church, the employer, the state and national governments, which inspires the children with the desirability and necessity to obey their own authorities, the home, the church and the school.

It is not the smooth words the parent speaks or the lectures the gives, or even the discipline the imposes, which make a lasting impression upon children. It is the deeds which count.

To some parents it seems a mark of prestige and of intelligence to flood authority and to differ with it. They tell themselves that they know best.

In any large unified opinion it is difficult to get any unified opinions about any matter, large or small. But there has to be some voice which speaks with authority and asks questions and gets it. Otherwise, there is anarchy.

For the good of the child, for

Miss Dorothea Spellman To Give Leadership Cou

By FRANCES GEDDES

"The use of volunteers is one of the real strengths of a recreation program because it enables so many people to contribute to the program," states Miss Horowitz. "I have been teaching a course in leadership for recreation in group workers in the city. She is associate professor of social group work at the school of social work, University of Denver. She has been a member of the Brooklyns' group work staff for 10 years. She must have been in the training area for a long time. She believes that good social worker always feels an appreciation of the person she is helping and never allows herself to regard the person as merely another number in the file cabinet. She is a very active person and then go on to make an interesting study of their own special interests, whether they be in career or group work.

Directing a camp for handicapped children in the Brooklyn Museum, she is a very active person and then go on to make an interesting study of their own special interests, whether they be in career or group work.

There are endless opportunities for young men and women in all fields of social work, she said. "I think that the most important agencies are always great and Miss Spellman believes that the most important is the family and life of the community, to be able to change with the circumstances."

"Everybody gives Everybody" is the old attitude of the welfare worker, she said. "In an agency is changing time as the belief is spreading that welfare workers are not just social workers, but agencies are doing one job."

Charaning and dignified, Miss Spellman said that welfare workers help to keep a person alive and fresh for his work. She has a photograph, she brought a and to do it successfully they must work together with the co-operation of the public, she said. She is conducting courses during the day for trained workers and in the evening sessions will make the general presentation of material and special interest groups will be taken by Prof. A. S. H. Tweed.

No Lumber Shortage In Russia

Despite the fact that Russia is lacking in many things, but lumber isn't one of them. With proper conservation, the timber supply of the U.S.S.R. is practically unlimited. There are some big rivers, each containing from 5,000 to 8,000 cubic feet of lumber about to be floated down the Volga from various tributaries.
